

hello!

Thank you for your interest in writing for 'Tales of Parenting', the zine where parents share their experiences of raising children. Parenthood is a journey, with highs and lows, and all that's in between. This zine gives parents a chance to share their honest accounts. You might have children who have flown the nest, or be a parent navigating the world of sleepless nights. You might be a mum, a dad, or a carer...we all have tales to tell!

What do we need from you?

- 500 words of your tale. What does parenting mean to you? What have been your highs and lows? Where are you in your parenting journey? There's no right or wrong story! If you'd like some inspiration let me know and I can send you snippets of what other parents have written.
- 2 photos of you and your child/children. I understand that you may want to protect the identity of your child/children and so pictures that don't show your child's face is fine.
- The number of how many days, weeks, months or years you've been a parent for and what you like to be called...mum? dad? mama? father?
- If you're on social media or run a business and have a website I'd be happy to include details of these at the end of your tale.

What you'll get in return

- A free copy of the 'Tales of Parenting' zine that you feature in when published
- A discount code to use in the Wild Oak Wood Shop that can be shared with friends/family/followers

The zine is published four times a year in February, May, August and November. If we would like to use your tale we will be in touch. We promise to read every single one!

Do get in touch if you have any questions. We're thoroughly looking forward to reading your tale!
